ECCENTRICITIES OF PRONUNCIATION.
Some students of Irish say that it is an exceedingly difficult language for English-speaking persons to read and pronounce. Where Irish is printed in English characters it is difficult for any but the initiated to distinguish which are the silent letters, but where Irish is printed in Irish characters there is absolutely no language more phonetic than it. If one masters the correct sounds of the Irish letters and the use of the accent marks it is easy to read and pronounce it; in fact, a student who starts right will be surprised at its simplicity. To show some of the difficulties found in reading and pronouncing English names we append herewith a few specimen eccentricities.
There is nothing so bad in Irish as:
Talbot is pronounced Tolbut.
Thames is pronounced Tems.
Bulwer is pronounced Buller.
Cowper is pronounced Cooper.
Holborn is pronounced Hoborn.
Wemyss is pronounced Weems.
Cockburn is pronounced Coburn.
Brougham is pronounced Broom.
Norwich is pronounced Norridge.
Knollys is pronounced Knowles.
St. Leger is pronounced Slinger.
Hawarden is pronounced Harden.
Colquhoun is pronounced Cohoon.
Cirencester is pronounced Sisster.
Grosvenor is pronounced Grosnor.
Salisbury is pronounced Sawlsbury.
Beauchamp is pronounced Chumley.
Marylebone is pronounced Marrabun.
Bolingbroke is pronounced Bullingbrook.
Majoribanks is pronounced March-banks.
Abergenenny is pronounced Aber-genny.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.
White knitted goods can be cleaned by washing in dry flour.
Stonemasons' sawdust is better than soap for cleaning floors.
If one can wear old, loose kid gloves while ironing, they will save many calloused spots on the hands.
Add a little turpentine to the water with which the floor is scrubbed. It will take away the gloss and smell and make the room delightfully fresh.
A piece of narrow webbing such as is used in holding furniture springs in place, sewed upon the under edge of rugs, will prevent the corners from curling.
When you have spilled anything on the stove or milk has boiled over and a suffocating smoke arises, sprinkle the spot with salt and it will disappear immediately.

Catholic Union Will Meet With Mackin Council Thursday Night.

Extracts From Bishop McFaul's Letter on Important Subject.

Policy of Organization Should Be Substituted For That of Silence.

SUGGESTIONS MADE BY GEN. GRANT

The Catholic Union will meet Thursday night in regular monthly session, and all delegates who can should attend.
This will be the last meeting with Mackin Council. The following extracts from Bishop McFaul's letter will throw much light on the movement:

Up to the present the public attention has been occupied with the exposition of grievances. Their remedy has been referred to, but not presented in any definite plan. It is surely not necessary to accentuate the need of organization for the purpose of executing any plan selected. Nevertheless it may not be out of place to touch upon the subject. While bigotry is not by any means dead in this country, most of us will agree with James E. Wright, who in Donahoe's Magazine expresses the opinion that the "careful exclusion of Catholics from the Commissions has not been instigated by bigotry, but is a carefully considered move in the political game—under the instruction of astute advisers. Had there been appointed even one prominent representative American Catholic on each of the Commissions to the Catholic peoples of the new possessions the reports submitted would quite likely have been different and probably would have led to considerable public discussion upon the subjects of education, of marriage and of the various complex questions arising from the abrupt severance of Church and State. All danger of this was avoided by the selection of exclusively non-Catholic Commissioners. For a similar reason Protestant Superintendents of schools have also been appointed for each of the new territories. If American Catholics were chagrined at their ostracism, anti-Catholic sentiment was profoundly elated.
In a word, taking all the circumstances of the situation into account, the course followed was doubtless considered carefully and it seems to have been a shrewd one from the viewpoint of the mere politician whose chief object is an election."

In other words, during the Presidential or other campaign it is quite safe to ignore Catholics. And whom have we to blame but ourselves? It has then come to this, that politicians looking over the field and weighing the factors on which success will necessarily depend do not find that the interests of Catholics, as American citizens, must be taken into consideration. What a sad commentary upon the policy of silence to which we have been so long and so tenaciously devoted!

In my opinion organization should be substituted for this policy of silence.
For years we have been trifled with and deprived of our rights, often for no other reason than that we are Catholics, and it is high time to devise and to apply a remedy. A sad experience has convinced us that individual effort is useless, except in very rare instances. Even when those eminent in religious or secular affairs have sought redress they have secured very little, if any—precisely because they were supported by no tangible organized body which commanded attention and urged just concessions.

As regards freedom of conscience in public institutions, Catholics are better off, perhaps, in New Jersey than in many other States of the Union; yet I have been placed in a similar humiliating position when seeking due representation on the boards of management of public institutions, so that the full religious rights of the Catholic inmates might be obtained, exercised and protected.
"Thrice is he armed who hath his quarrel just," I found had but a very remote application. The authorities greeted me with exuberant courtesy, but my requests for the enjoyment of undoubted rights were often futile and probably were not conceded serious attention. The rights of citizenship do not so strongly appeal to the reigning politician as his own interests, and they are dependent upon the political party which he has espoused. At the present time there are not a few in political life who are concerned solely with whatever will either advance or prove an obstacle to their political ambitions.

It was not thought wise, when giving publicity to our grievances, to anticipate public opinion among Catholics by offering at the same time a definite plan or remedy. Therefore in my letters and addresses to societies composed of Catholics even organization was referred to only in a tentative way. It was suggested that if societies composed of Catholics retaining their identity and pursuing their own aims independently of one another touched at certain points, the resulting bond of union would enable them to exert concerted influence, possessing value whenever and wherever bigots attempted the invasion of our rights.
Care was taken to state clearly that no movement purposing to advance Catholics, as Catholics, to political office would be serviceable. In the United States political office can not be claimed by the adherents as such of any form of religion.
Nevertheless an American citizen should never be discriminated against simply because he is a Catholic, or because he has aided Catholics when there was question of their constitutional rights. Moreover, it was emphatically announced that no organization directed against any political party, merely as a party, could be regarded with favor; that it was not contemplated to interfere with party affiliations. Catholics, in their political and civil relations, must be guided and controlled, of course, by the laws of morality; they can not admit that there is one code of ethics, one interpretation of the ten commandments for the individual and another for the nation. The words of the Savior are as true today as when He uttered them nineteen centuries ago: "Render, therefore, to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's." The ballot must be cast in the light of moral principles and conscientiously.

Adherence to these principles, however, will not forbid us to oppose ignorant, presumptuous bigotry nor to prevent its followers from entering political life in America.

The object desired is evident enough, although we may not so clearly perceive the means leading up to its attainment.
We may learn a lesson from our Protestant fellow-citizens. They stand up cour-ageously in defense of their rights. If the National Administration, the State Legislatures or local boards attempt to interfere with the smallest claim of the sects, their protests are heard in clarion tones throughout the length and breadth of the land and delegation after delegation of their representative laymen beseige the halls of legislation. As a rule they have been victorious. Very few politicians care to withstand determined public opposition. The advice given by Gen. Grant when President may serve as an illustration: "These people get together, call meetings, get up petitions and send deputies down here and thus they often secure their object. Now, that is what you Catholics should do.
Get together, make out a statement of your case and back it with as much force as you can muster." This is good advice; it is brief and right to the point. It is likewise in perfect harmony with our form of government. The citizen is acting strictly within the rights of citizenship when he resorts to such measures to obtain or defend his rights. Indeed, he may be justly accused of neglect if he does not exercise this prerogative when the occasion demands.

This is the goal to be reached; in what manner can we best advance toward it?
The federation of all societies composed of Catholics has been debated for several years, and certain leaders among the laity, belonging to the principal organizations, have even taken steps toward its consummation by calling meetings and by outlining constitutions. This movement has not been primarily inaugurated for the redress of grievances; there are many other reasons given why such a union is desirable. Through federation we would have at hand a body of men trained by experience in the management of organizations, many of whom are anxious and ready to employ their knowledge for the purpose suggested. It is alleged that the difficulties and dangers connected with societies would be multiplied in a general organization. If we are to be discouraged by obstacles which, after all, are not insurmountable, then we have departed far from the spirit of our heroic ancestors, who sacrificed life itself rather than surrender either religious or civil rights.
But why should we fear? American Catholics are worthy of their forefathers.
Point the way; let legitimate, constitutional, prudent means be selected, and they will give most cheerful support.
No one can deny that the American Catholic possesses the courage of his convictions.

SOCIETY AND OTHER NEWS NOTES

[Special Correspondence of the Kentucky Irish American.]
FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 22.—Last Tuesday morning the Church of the Good Shepherd was the scene of a very pretty wedding. The contracting parties were two of Frankfort's most popular young people, Miss Marcella Waters and R. J.
Lynch. The wedding was solemnized with a nuptial mass, Father Major officiating. Dennis Lynch, of Pittsburg, brother of the groom, was best man, while Miss Mabel Waters, the pretty sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid.
Immediately after the ceremony a delightful breakfast was partaken of at the home of the bride's parents on St. Clair street. The happy young couple were the recipients of many handsome and useful presents from their large circle of friends. The bride is one of Frankfort's most charming girls, the daughter of J.
T. Waters, and made a host of friends while with Weitzel & O'Donnell during the past three years as saleslady. Mr.
Lynch is the proprietor of the Frankfort Granite Marble Works and one of Frankfort's leading Irish-American young business men. Their many friends wish them a long life of happiness and prosperity.

On Friday evening last Frankfort Lodge B. P. O. Elks gave their minstrel entertainment at the Capital City Theater before one of the largest and most fashionable audiences that ever assembled at this popular place of amusement. The programme was excellently arranged and executed in a manner that would have reflected credit upon professionals in that line. The entertainment was opened by Dr. J. G. South, who acted as interlocutor, in a most excellent rendition of "Monarch of All He Surveys." Then followed in rapid succession end men Messrs. F. C. Hutchison, George Barnes, J. H. Stewart, Dr. C. C. Owens, George Stehlin and Judge D. B. Anderson, each of whom contributed his share to keep the large audience convulsed with laughter. Special mention should be made of the rendition of "Shoo, Little Baby, Shoo," by J. H. Stewart; "A Typical Time of Zanzibar," by Judge Anderson; "Just to See My Home Before I Die," by W. W. Longmoor, and "I Don't Care What Happens to Me Now," by F. C.
Hutchison, each of which was heartily applauded. But it remained for Austin Lynch and R. Emmet Noonan to capture the audience and make two of the greatest hits of the evening. The former sang that beautiful melody entitled "You Tell Me Your Dream and I Will Tell You Mine," while the latter sang a very popular vaudeville song entitled "And They All Joined In." Twice the delighted audience brought them back, and even then clamored for another rendition. The feature of the second part was songs by F. C. Hutchison; "He Came to See the Professor," by Reid and Stehlin; a farce representing a special meeting of the lodge at which a new member was "initiated." Then followed a cake-walk, won by Dr. Buckmaster and Walter Hay, formerly of Jeffersonville, but now of this city, which closed the entertainment.
Owing perhaps to the efficient management of the committee in charge, J. P.
Hanley, George Barnes and George Stehlin, the entertainment was a grand social and financial success, about $600 being cleared. Mr. Hanley is a former Louisville man, but has resided for the past several years in Frankfort and is recognized as one of her most progressive young business men.

The St. Valentine dance given by the young ladies of Frankfort last week at the Young Men's Institute hall was undoubtedly one of the most successful entertainments of the season in point of attendance and pleasant time. Many of Frankfort's prettiest girls, as well as a large number of charming young lady visitors, were in attendance. The beautiful evening dresses worn tended to increase the sweet beauty of the graceful participants. The programmes, which were retained as souvenirs of the event, were very artistic, showing the rare taste of the young ladies having the matter in charge. The following ladies were present: Misses Rena Lee, New Albany; Mayme Baker, Eminence; Minnie and Floia Peiri, Mayme Caden, Georgetown; Fannie Howard, Cynthia; Misses Kulb, Midway; Daisy and Eleanor Oliver, Lawrenceburg; Miss Bankhart, Lexington; Jessie O'Dell, Lawrenceburg; Misses Freda Weisenburg, Mayme Winkler, Julia and Sally Showalter, Rose Salender, Bessie Goodwin, Kate Phillips, Agnes Thompson, Pattie Graham, Rya Lutkemeier, Viola Winkler of this city.
The gentlemen in attendance were Messrs. Zinsmeister, Louisville; J. C.
Parker and Albert Chapman, Lexington; Will Hickey and J. S. Humphries, Georgetown; James O'Dell, Earl Spencer, Otis Wallen and Mr. McBrayer, Lawrenceburg; Will Spotnagle, Payne's Depot; John Gayle, R. Emmet Noonan, John and Will Lutkemeier, Frank Thompson, ler, Vic Laughlin, Tom and W. C. Newman, Frank Phillips, Joe Toombs, L. B.

THE UNTOLD.

"I didn't tell you, did I, Mildred," said Mr. Cavil to his wife, "that I saw your sister Jane down town this day week?"
"No, you didn't, Charles Augustus Cavil," replied Mrs. Cavil. "Why didn't you?"
"Well, you see—"

"Yes, I see. You meet the only sister I have in the world, and instead of coming straight home and telling me about it the same day, as any respectable husband would have done, you keep the matter secret a whole week and then ask carelessly if you have mentioned the fact that you saw her."

"But my dear!"
"Don't 'but' me, Charles Augustus Cavil. I have no doubt that she sent me a message by you, and you not only failed to deliver it, but by this time you have forgotten what it was about. Tell me if this isn't the case."

"My dear, it was this way"— "Don't tell me it was that way, Charles Augustus Cavil. I know exactly how it was. You simply didn't care a straw whether I knew that you had seen Sister Jane or not or you would not have waited a whole week to tell me you had seen her."

"But I didn't say I saw her," Mr. Cavil said at length.
"Then I'd like to know what you did say, Charles Augustus Cavil."

"I asked you if I told you that I saw her," explained Mr. Cavil.
"Well, why didn't you tell me?"
"The reason I didn't tell you was because I didn't see her; that's all."
Mrs. Cavil gasped and was speechless.
